Preface.

WHEN, in 1871, the Historical Manuscripts Commission reported on the MSS. at Chirk Castle, the late Mr. A. J. Horwood very properly made no mention of a number of household account books there deposited, as being of no general interest. After a perusal of these accounts it occurred to the compiler that a selection might be made from them which would interest at least some members and connections of the family to which they relate. The accounts throw some light upon the family history and the every day life of two and a half centuries ago, and the many recorded burials and references to attendance at funerals remind us that the life of man is but a span long. In many cases items of no interest in themselves tell us incidentally of the visits to relatives and friends. The original spelling has been adhered to. It may be observed that the dates do not always tally with the day upon which a payment was made. A small day book appears to have been kept, especially on journeys away from home, which on the return was made up, and any forgotten item was then added without reference to date. Nor do the several items which are sometimes included in one entry and brought out in a total always cast correctly. One is led to wonder how the accounts ever balanced; but the mysteries of book-keeping are to this day beyond the ken of ordinary men.

The period here covered is from 1605 to 1666. For nearly the first forty years the accounts are incomplete, and have been gathered together from loose papers. From 1646 onwards they were kept by successive stewards or bailiffs, and are fairly complete for that period. In 1605 Sir Thomas Myddelton, third son of Richard Myddelton, governor of Denbigh Castle, was owner of the lordship of Chirk, which he had purchased by deed dated 14th August, 1595, from Lord St. John, of Bletsoe House, Bedfordshire. It was then the practice when a person acquired freehold property to take possession by livery of seisin; that is, in the case of a house the feoffor or his attorney took the ring, the latch, or the key of the door and handed it to the feoffee in token of the transfer, before witnesses who might thereafter be called upon to give evidence in a dispute as to ownership. On this occasion Lord St John appointed as his attorneys his "welbeloved in Christ" Sir Robert Salusbury, of Rug, John Salusbury, of Llewenny, Esq., Roger Puleston,* of Emral, Esq., and John Lloyd,* of Yale, Esq., who gave possession on 16th August. The witnesses included William

* Afterwards knighted.

Myddelton, of Gwaynynog, John Conway, of Bodrhyddan, whose daughter Katherine the said William had married, William Penryn, steward of the lordship to Lord St. John and afterwards to Sir Thomas, Hugh Myddelton, Robert Myddelton, and Foulk Myddelton—the three last being brothers of the purchaser. The lordship extended into three countries—Denbighshire, Shropshire and Montgomeryshire—and the purchase included all manner of deer in Yollyn Park, alias Park Yollyn, and in Brinkinallt Park, otherwise called Black Park; the Chapel of Chirk and all tithes belonging thereto, and the right to hold Courts leet, Courts Baron, Royalties, View of Frankpledge, Suits of Court, felons' goods, fugitives' goods, traitors' goods, deodands, with power to appoint officers, etc.

Sir Thomas Myddelton resided chiefly in London, and at the time of this purchase in Mincing Lane, in the parish of St. Dunstan in the East. The following year he moved to "The Bear," in Great Tower Street, formerly occupied by Lady Holcroft, of which he had a lease for eighteen years which expired in 1613, when he moved to a house which adjoined the churchyard of St. Mary Aldermary. Here he lived till his death, which took place 12th August, 1631, having settled his eldest son and heir Thomas at Chirk Castle, on his marriage in 1612 to Margaret Savile. It is of the accounts of the son from that date to the time of his death in 1666 which are principally dealt with. Of this Sir Thomas it may not be out of place to give some account, in the compilation of which free use has been made of the Dictionary of National Biography.

He was born in London and baptized at the Church of St. Dunstan in the East on 10th July, 1586, his mother being Hester, daughter of Sir Richard Saltonstall, Lord Mayor of London, 1597-8. He matriculated at Queen's College, Oxford, 22nd February, $160\frac{4}{5}$, entered Grays Inn in 1607,* and was married, firstly, in 1612,† to Margaret, only daughter and heiress of George Savile, of Wakefield, in Yorkshire, who, with her son named Thomas, died about a year afterwards. In 1614 he appears as a Deputy Lieutenant for the County, and was knighted at Whitehall 10th February, $161\frac{4}{7}$, and married, secondly, on 28th February following, at Luton Hoo, Beds, to Mary,‡ eldest daughter of Sir Robert Napier, of that place, by whom he had a family of seven sons and six daughters. He sat in Parliament for Weymouth and Melcombe Regis 1624-5, for the County of Denbigh 1625, and in the Long Parliament 1641-8, and again in the Convention Parliament 1660. We learn from a petition from the freeholders and feefarmers of Yale on 22nd November, 1630, that he, together with George Puleston, Esq., and Thomas Foster, Gent., were Deputy Stewards of the Lordship of Bromfield and Yale to John, Earl of Bridgewater, Chief Steward. In 1646 he was Custos Rotulorum for the County, and, with the exception of a short period immediately preceding the Restoration, so continued till his death. At the breaking out of the Civil War in December, 1642, he was despatched by the Parliament to his constituents to use his influence in its behalf, and it was on account of a menacing letter addressed to his constituents to submit to the Parliament that the King sent orders to the Army to sieze upon his castle. This was done in Sir Thomas' absence in January, $164\frac{2}{3}$, by Col. Robert Ellice, of Croesnewydd, in the parish of Wrexham, with above 100 soldiers, and Capt. John Watts, of Mardocks, in the parish of Ware, was placed there as governor with a garrison. On 12th June, 1643, Sir Thomas Myddelton was appointed Serjeant Major-General of North Wales.

As soon as he had got his forces together he set out from London on 10th August, and reached Nantwich in Cheshire, where he was joined by Sir William Brereton. On 11th September they seized Wem, which they garrisoned and made their Shropshire headquarters. While engaged in fortifying Wem Lord Capel from Staffordshire marched on Nantwich, but was signally defeated outside Wem in two separate conflicts, on 17th and 18th October. On 7th November they left Nantwich and were joined at Stretton by Sir George Booth with troops from Lancashire; and, crossing the Dee at Holt, entered North Wales, when Wrexham, Hawarden, Flint, Mostyn, Mold and Holywell were taken in quick succession, to be abandoned with even greater precipitancy after the landing at Mostyn on 18th November of some 2,500 Royalist soldiers from Ireland, and the failure of an attempt to win them over to the side of Parliament. This is not to be wondered at, for Sir Thomas' troops were but raw Militiamen, while his opponents were trained soldiers. Leaving Brereton alone at Nantwich, Sir Thomas hastened to London, where he arrived about the middle of December, 1643, for the purpose of raising recruits. In February, $164\frac{3}{4}$, his command in North Wales was confirmed by a fresh commission, vesting him with almost unlimited power as to levying contributions and sequestrating estates of delinquents, and ordaining that the King's share of the profit of the New River brought from Chadwell and Amwell to London should be paid to Sir Thomas. He left London about the end of May, 1644, and marched to Nantwich, and thence to Knutsford, where a muster of all the Cheshire forces was intended, so as to carry out a great design against Prince Rupert into Lancashire. But the design was relinquished owing to the Royalists, to the number of about four thousand, having laid siege to Oswestry, recently won by the Parliamentarians; and Sir Thomas hurrying to the scene before the arrival of his colleagues, raised the siege by a brilliant action on 2nd July, completely routing the Royalists under Col. Marrow. About this time, as Serjeant Major-General and Vice-Admiral of the six counties of North Wales, he published "A Declaration setting forth the illegality and incongruity of a pernicious Oath and Protestation," which by a Royalist Council of War held at Salop on 22nd July, 1643, had been imposed upon the inhabitants of the several counties of North Wales, Worcester and Salop. Returning to Nantwich as his headquarters, Sir Thomas for some time watched Prince Rupert's movements, and joining Col. Thomas Mytton, his brother-in-law, on 3rd August, he suddenly descended on Rupert's party at Welshpool, defeated them and returned to Nantwich with 200 head of cattle driven from the Park of Powis Castle. A raid was then made into Montgomeryshire, surprising the garrison at Newtown on 4th September, and capturing there a large quantity of ammunition. He advanced the same day to Montgomery, and without any resistance the Castle there was surrendered to him by its owner, the black Lord Herbert of Chirbury, as the first Lord Herbert was called. Thereupon Sir Michael Erneley, who was in command of the Royalist forces at Shrewsbury—twenty miles away—marched upon Montgomery to recover it, a measure anticipated by Sir Thomas, who tried to collect provisions in the neighbourhood to victual his men in case of a siege. While thus engaged Erneley intercepted his return and defeated him outside the town. Some, however, of Sir Thomas' foot soldiers under Col. Mytton succeeded in entering the Castle, which Erneley at once besieged. Sir Thomas returned with the remainder of his forces to Oswestry; and, after obtaining reinforcements from Lancashire, returned, accompanied by Brereton and Sir William Fairfax. They arrived on 17th September in sight of Montgomery, when the whole strength of both parties in North Wales and the borders was now assembled. After a desperate conflict, in which the issue long remained doubtful, and Fairfax was mortally wounded, the Parliamentarians completely routed their opponents, who thereupon regarded their defeat as the deathblow to their power in North Wales. Sir Thomas, for his signal services, received the thanks of the House.

He now had the command of Montgomery Castle and was able to turn his attention to Shrewsbury, where by cautious skirmishing he captured most of the garrisoned outposts, and with one exception blocked all the passages to the town. In December he stormed a stronghold of the King's called Abbey Cwm-hir, in Radnorshire, took the governor, Col. Ballard, with his officers and men, prisoners, and dismantled the stronghold. During the same march his forces, under the command of Capt. Farrer, destroyed Mathafarn House,* in Montgomeryshire, fortified by the owner, Mr. Pugh. He next signified to his officers his desire of attempting to take Powis Castle, and proposed such means as he judged most expedient, and they, after some debate, unanimously consented to his proposals. On Monday, the last day of September, he advanced with about 300 horse and 100 foot from Montgomery to Welshpool, where he quartered Monday night and the whole of Tuesday. Wednesday night the moon shone forth, and by its light they drew near to the Castle, but waited until two o'clock for the moon's going down before they commenced the attack. They then approached the precincts. It was a formidable fortress; the gates were all down; but the rich booty within made the party anxious and impatient for an assault. The master-gunner, John Arundel, was ordered to place a petarre against the gate. A sharp struggle followed. Those who were within offered every possible resistance, but to no purpose. The interior of the castle was soon reached, the valuable stores rummaged, and the Lord Powis, with his brother, two sons, and a large number of officers and men, were made prisoners. The castle was found to be well stored with sufficient provision to maintain a prolonged siege.*

Intending to keep Christmas in one of his own houses, Sir Thomas appeared on 21st December, 1644, before his own Castle of Chirk, which was still held by Captain (now Sir John) Watts, who, after a three days' siege, was able to write on Christmas Day the following letter† to Prince Rupert:—

"May it Please your Highnesse:

This gentleman iourneyinge towards Oxford, I most humbly beseeche Leave, to present to your Highnesse by him an account of a Late action of the Rebels. They Lately beeseiged mee for three daies; Their Engineeres attempted to worke into the Castle with Iron Crowes and Pickers, under great plancks and tables, which they had erected against the Castle side for their shelter; but my stones beate them of; they acknowledged in Oswestry they had 31 slaine, and 43 others hurt; their prime Engineere was slain by the Castle side; they are very sadd for him; If your Highnesse please, this Gentleman will fully impart all the passages duringe the seige to your Highnesse; hee was in the Castle with mee: I shall not presume to bee further tedious; I most humbly kisse your Highnesse sweete hands, and will Ever bee

This."

Much about this same time he had notice that Sir Francis Oteley, High Sheriff of Shropshire, was raising forces to assist Prince Maurice into North Wales and Cheshire, and to man the garrison of Shrewsbury. Upon which Sir Thomas sent a party of his horse, who entered Shropshire and surprised Sir Francis and several other gentlemen then putting in execution the Commission of Array. This action of Sir Thomas contributed not a little to the taking of Shrewsbury.

The "Self Denying Ordinance," for relieving members of both Houses of their military commands, had been passed on 3rd April, 1645, but in Sir Thomas' case a special order was made prolonging his command for forty days. This gave him time to withdraw to Montgomeryshire to settle affairs there before transferring his command to Col. Mytton. This done he proceeded to London to resume his Parliamentary duties.

It was nearly a year after this before he was able to gain possession of Chirk. On 2nd March, 164⅝, Sir Wm. Brereton, writing from Stafford, sends to him the good news of the Castle having been delivered up by Sir John Watts to Sir Thomas' daughter Elizabeth, wife of Sir George Warburton, of Arley. Sir John marched out on Sunday, 1st March, in the direction of Churchstoke, three miles from Montgomery. Col. Sam. Moore, governor of Montgomery Castle, having received intelligence thereof, surprised him and his party, who were compelled to seek shelter in Churchstoke Church; but, after about two hours' endeavour, the doors were fired and the whole force captured, with all their bag and baggage, and £1,000 in money. Col. Mytton, who had negociated the surrender of Chirk, had agreed, possibly on a condition that the place should be left in good order, that Sir John should be paid £200, and there is a draft order for it among the calendars of the House of Lords dated 11th June, 1646.

On 7th March, 164⅝, Thomas Myddelton, eldest son of Sir Thomas, was appointed governor of the Castle by the Parliament. He it was who was in command when Lambert came against it in August, 1659. When, however, there was a general reaction in the country in favour of the King in 1648 Sir Thomas was one of the persons to whom the principal inhabitants of Flintshire and Denbighshire, in their fidelity to Parliament, entrusted the management of their county affairs. He was also the first signatory to articles of peace agreed upon 2nd October, 1648, on the suppression of a revolt in Anglesey. His zeal for the Parliament at this time was abating, and he was one of the secluded members. And as before his castle had been seized for the King's use, so now the new powers, grown jealous of him, put a garrison into it of which he could not get rid till he had given them a bond of £10,000 and other security for his good behaviour; upon which, on 16th May, 1651, they gave orders to Col. Robt. Duckenfield, governor of Chester, for the garrison to be withdrawn. In the carrying out of this order there appears to have been some delay, as the Council of State wrote again on 30th May urging him to carry it out, and enquiring the reason of the delay in so doing.

In 1659 Sir Thomas, accompanied by many of his kinsmen and friends, joined Sir George Booth in the rising in Cheshire in favour of the recall of Charles II. Lambert was sent against them, and the opposing forces met near Northwich, when, in a sharp fight which took place on 19th August, the Royalists were routed. Sir George Booth, Sir Thomas Myddelton, and others made their way to Chester, and Sir Thomas and some of his friends, amongst whom was probably Sir George, reached Chirk in safety. But the leaders made but a short stay there, Sir George being captured four days later at Newport Pagnell on his way to London. Sir Thomas escaped to the Continent,* but was subsequently taken. The Council of State on 9th August resolved that Sir George Booth, Sir Thomas Myddelton, Col. Randolph Egerton, and Col. Robt. Worden be proclaimed traitors in all the market towns and all the churches throughout the country.

After their defeat, General Lambert besieged Chirk Castle, where the governor, Thomas Myddelton, after two or three days of resistance, was compelled to surrender on 24th August, 1659. The castle was plundered, and ordered to be demolished. This was only partially carried out, owing to the strong Royalist feeling throughout the country. The trees in the park were cut down and sold. The total losses suffered were estimated at £30,000.

Sir Roger Burgoyne, writing to Sir Ralph Verney under date last of February, 165⅝, says: "Sir George Booth's committee sat this morning by 7 or 8 o'clock. I saw him and Sir Thomas Myddelton there; I hope they will come off well. Massey walkt in the Hall this day tho' I saw him not" (Verney Memoirs). Sir Thomas regained his liberty, and, undaunted by his late very narrow escape, was forming designs for the seizure of the town of Shrewsbury. Sir Edward Hyde, the chief minister of the exiled King, writing from Brussels on 12th January, 1660, to Rev. Dr. Barwick, afterwards Dean of St. Paul's, says: "If Sir Thomas could make himself master of Shrewsbury it would be an excellent post." Sir Thomas was to receive a commission as Commander-in-Chief of the Counties of North Wales. Sir Edward, writing again, says: "What is to be done with reference to the proposition concerning Shrewsbury must be left to my Lord Mordaunt and the rest of the Commissioners to adjust. If it were included in his (Sir Thomas Myddelton's) commission, it must draw that whole country likewise under his power and command: and how that will suit with the good acceptance of my Lord Newport and the rest of the Commissioners of that countrey is not hard to guess; and yet, no doubt, they will be glad of any sure way to take Shrewsbury, and to have so good a neighbour in North Wales as Sir Thomas Myddelton: therefore there is no way to prevent all jealousies and mistakes but by bringing my Lord Newport, or Andrew Newport, and Sir Thomas Myddelton together: who will easily agree, and prosecute any reasonable design, and secure one another." And again on the 20th February he writes: "No man is so fit to be governor of it as Sir Thomas Myddelton, who offers to contribute so much to the possession of it." But all arrangements for wresting Shrewsbury by force of arms from the Parliament had been rendered unnecessary before the letter was written, by Monk declaring on February 11th for the King.*

At the Restoration Sir Thomas was offered a Peerage, which he declined in a suitable and handsome manner, but accepted a cabinet of exquisite beauty, from the King. It is chased with silver, and paintings said to be by Rubens and to have cost £10,000. His son Thomas was created a Baronet on 4th July, 1660. During the restoration of the castle the family resided at Kevenywerne,† a mansion house about two miles away in the direction of Ruabon.

* Owen and Blakeway's Shrewsbury.

† Formerly a residence of the Edwards family.

And it was here that the old soldier ended his days in peace in December, 1666, aged 80 years. That Sir Thomas was a man of literature and a patron of learning we have ample testimony, and he was fairly well versed in astrology, being a disciple of Rev. Richard Napier, Rector of Great Linford, Bucks, his wife's uncle. His religious character is strongly impressed in all his despatches, in which he never claims for himself the credit of any of his successes, but bestows it freely on other officers or ascribes it to the bravery of his men, for whose safety he shews the greatest solicitude. An instance of his usual peaceable disposition and his aversion of unnecessary bloodshed is exemplified in the friendly summons to surrender which he addressed to Col. Wm. Salusbury, governor of Denbigh Castle, his kinsman and former acquaintance. The almost unlimited powers of sequestrating estates which he possessed as Major-General for North Wales, he executed with great moderation, and the most serious charge brought against him by his enemies consisted in such alleged acts of vandalism as breaking up the fair organ of Wrexham Church for the sake of supplying his men with bullets. He repaired the private chapel in the castle, and from a note made by him we are informed that between February, 1630, and the 7th December, 1632, he had expended a sum of £120 upon it, besides fitting up an organ in it at a cost of £150.* It is also recorded there was a crucifix in his chapel. From these circumstances, and from the knowledge of his careful observance of his duties as a member of the Church of England, it is clear that he was far from being in accord with the extreme Puritans, whose religious zeal led them to commit such wanton acts of vandalism, traces of which are to be seen in the Cathedrals and Churches throughout the land.

It is through the kindness of a descendant, Mr. Richard Myddelton, formerly an officer in the Life Guards, the present possessor of the noble castle of Chirk, that we are indebted for the loan of MSS. from which the greater part of the accounts have been derived, and also much information concerning the family, and to him we are indebted for permission to copy the portraits here illustrated. Some notes have been added which it is hoped will be found useful to the reader. In the compilation of them free use has been made of Foster's "Alumni Oxonienses," Archdeacon Thomas' "History of the Diocese of St. Asaph," "The Complete Peerage" and "The Complete Baronetage," both by G. E. C., "The Dictionary of National Biography," "Calendars of State Papers," and many other sources, both printed and in manuscript. These notes might have been considerably increased; the delay involved, however, would probably have had the effect of postponing till the Greek Kalends the printing of these accounts.

(3) Thomas Lloyd of Plas uwch Clawdd in the parish of Ruabon, was steward 10 Jac. I., and perhaps earlier: he appears to have succeeded Wm. Penryn in that office, and married Dorothy daughter of Robt. Lloyd of Bryn in the parish of Hanmer, one of the Bodyguard to Queen Elizabeth. He was sworn burgess of Denbigh 1 May, 1617, and is described as of Ruabon, Esq., "Councellor at Barr, Stuard to the lo. of Chirke being a forin was admitted and sworne gratis at the Request of Sr Thomas Myddelton, Knight." He died in July 1631 and was buried in Ruabon church.

(4) Edward Lord Wotton of Boughton Malherbe, co. Kent on 30 Nov. 12 Jac. I. in consideration of the payment of £250 16s., and of two half-yearly payments of £62 14s. each, to be made at the north porch of Wrexham church, assigned the Rectorial tithes of Chirk to Sir Thomas Myddelton the elder.

(5) Edward Lloyd, coroner, of Plas Madoc in the parish of Ruabon son of Wm. Lloyd of the same place, by his wife Catherine daughter of Owen Brereton Esq. of Burras: he was buried at Ruabon 1 Jan. 1637.

(6) Fifth son of Richard Myddelton, governor of Denbigh Castle whom he succeeded in that office: born in the parish of Henllan. At this time he is described as "factor Receiver" to his brother Sir Thomas. Shortly before his death he was moved from Denbigh Castle to Plas Chambres his son-in-law's house where he died, and was buried at Whitchurch, Denbigh, 3 Apl. 1621.

(7) Of Gwaynynog in the parish of Henllan near Denbigh: High Sheriff of Denbighshire 1600. Peter Roberts the notary of St. Asaph thus describes his burial: "Md that upon Wednesday being the xxiith daie of March 1636 about vii of the clocke in the afternoone, viz.^{t} in the twilight, Willm Myddleton Esq., being an auncient Justice of the peace was buried at Henllan."

(8) Robert Lloyd eldest son and heir of Edward Lloyd Esq., of Plas is Clawdd in the parish of Chirk. He and his wife were buried at Chirk on the same day 13 Jan. 1618. Her name was Mary, daughter of John Wyn Edwards Esq., of Keven y werne:

he was coroner within the lordship of Chirk. Wm Penryn the steward writing of a former coroner to his master "The worship^{ll} Thomas Myddelton esquier at his house in Tower Street London," under date 28 July 1599, says, "Vpon sonday last yor tenant ye Crowner Willm. Edwardes of Chirke was buried, whether he holdeth in capite or not I am uncertain as yet, his sonne is not above three yeres olde, y^{t} were convenient that yo^{u} had a frend in his rowme, by yo^{r} trēs pattents of Chirke, the noiacon of a Crowner is grnnted vnto yo^{u}."

(9) Of Mincing Lane, London, Merchant, a younger brother of Sir Thomas. He left this £200 to the town of Denbigh, where he was born, to be lent out in sums of £40, for three years at a time, to poor young tradesmen of the town, at interest at the rate of five per cent. per annum, which interest was to be distributed in bread, "on the Satterdaye in the afternoone after evening prayer which is allreadye nowe vsed to be payd them theere of my free guifte." He also left £100 to the town of Weymouth and Melcombe Regis where his first wife Margaret daughter of John Mansell Esq. was born, and which he had at one time represented in Parliament. This £100 was to be similarly employed as his gift to Denbigh and was under certain circumstances to revert to his native town.

(10) Third son of Richard Myddelton, governor of Denbigh Castle. He translated the Psalms into Welsh metre, and finished them 4 Jan. 1595, apud Scutum insulam occidentalium Indorum, which, as well as his Bardonnaeth, or art of Welsh poetry, were published in London—the first in 1603, the other in 1593. It is said that he, with Captain Thomas Price of Plasyollin, and one Capt. Koet [Huet] were the first who smoked, or (as they called it) drank tobacco publickly in London; and that the Londoners flocked from all parts to see them. Pipes were not them invented so they used the twisted leaves, or segars (Pennant's Wales ii. p. 33). Malcolm in his Londinium Redivivum, 1801, iv. p. 499, states, There was a tradition in the parish of St. Matthew, Friday Street, that Sir Walter Raleigh, and Sir Hugh Myddelton often smoaked tobacco together at the door of Sir Hugh's house in that parish. He was a captain in the Navy, and in the fight off the Azores in 1591 was first to give intelligence of the approach of the Spaniards to the Admiral Lord Howard of Effingham. In religion he was a Roman Catholic, and died at Antwerp 27th Apl. 1621.

(11) Thomas Trafford of Wrexham, of the same stock as the family of Jones of Llwynon. He was appointed Receiver of North Wales and Chester on 3 July 1603, and a Dep. Lieut. for Denbighshire in 1614. He and Thomas Trafford junior in 1639 were indebted to the King in the sum of £900 for knighthood moneys which they had received and not accounted for. Their lands were accordingly extended at £100 a year until the debt should be paid.

(13) John Chambres of Plas Chambres near Denbigh who married Anne daughter of Chas. Myddelton, the writer. He caused his father-in-law to be removed in a horse litter accompanied by Richard Pigott vicar of Denbigh a few days before his death, from Denbigh Castle, of which he was governor, to Plas Chambres, with an eye to taking possession of his personal estate. Concerning this there was a trial which made great stir at the time. It was held at the Shire Hall in Denbigh in the year 1622, and Chambres was ordered to restore the personal estate to the hands of the executors, Sir Thomas Myddelton the younger and Evan Lloyd of Wickwer, gent.

(19) Capt. David Middleton, the well-known navigator, son of John Myddelton of Chester, by his wife Katherine daughter of Thos. Bavand, alderman of Chester. He was ancestor of the Middletons of Middleton Hall in the parish of Llanarthney, 7½ miles from Carmarthen. His widow Alice remarried to John Cannon Esq., of Blagdon co. Somerset.

(20) Evidently a law book by Edmond Plowden the jurist.

(21) Elizabeth daughter of Sir Edward Ayscough who had married as her second husband Sir George Savile Bart. of Thornhill co. York, a kinsman of her first husband George Savile of Wakefield, the father of Sir Thomas' first wife Margaret Savile.

(22) Sir Thomas was apparently married to Margaret Savile at Thornhill in Yorkshire by the Rev^{d} Edward Whitakers who was then rector of that parish. They set out for Chirk on 2nd Sept. following where they remained until 24 Oct. Then they returned to Thornhill, where Sir Thomas tells us he kept house. They visited Wales again and London in the following year; and, after the death of his wife, he left Yorkshire on 1 Feb. 161¾.

(32) Emley seven miles from Huddersfield.

(33) Perhaps David Penryn of Oswestry, gent. who was in the employment of Sir Thos. Myddelton the elder. He had formerly been in the service of Wm. Penryn of Rhisnant, Llandisilio, the steward of the lordship of Chirk and High Sheriff of Montgomeryshire in 1604.

(34) Nicholas Radclyffe of Owersthorpe in Thornhill, son of Charles Radclyffe of the same place, by his wife Margaret daughter of Thos. Savile of Eccelsey, died in 1599; his widow Margaret, daughter of Robt. Marsh of Darton co. York, may be the cousin referred to: she was buried at Thornhill 4 July 1628. Life of Sir G. Radcliffe 1810 by Dr. T. D. Whitaker.

(35) Wm. Hatfield entered the service of Sir Thos. Myddelton on 12 Feb. 1612 at Thornhill where Sir Thos. was then keeping house. He probably came from that neighbourhood. In a deed dated 15 June 1 Car. I, he is described as of Chirk Castle, gent., and in another dated 20 July 1636, as of Llanden. Llanden is now a farmhouse a little way outside Llangollen in the direction of Trevor. On 14 April 1657 we find him holding a court at Llangollen for the manors of Isclawdd, Glynn and Llangollen.

(36) For Margaret the wife of Sir Thomas.

(37) Andrew Brereton of Llanvair-isgair three miles from Carnarvon, a younger son of Owen Brereton of Burras, Wrexham, by his wife Elizabeth only daughter of John Salusbury of Llewenny. In 1613 he became steward to Sir Thomas the elder for his property in the counties of Carnarvon and Merioneth. He was tenant of Plas dû in the township of Pencoyd co. Carnarvon in 1628—then Chirk Castle property—at a yearly rent of £60. He died in 1649.

(38) Thomas Middleton the dramatist who wrote the Pageant called, "The Triumphs of Truth," at the inauguration of Sir Thomas Myddelton as Lord Mayor of London on Michaelmas Day 1613. The same day the New River for supplying London with "sweet and wholesome water" was opened at Clerkenwell amidst much rejoicing. This opening was witnessed—as the dramatist tells us—by "the worthy Sir John Svvinnarton, Knight, then Lord Maior, the Learned and Iuditious Sir Henry Montagve, Maister Recorder, and many of the Right Worshipfull the Aldermen of the City of London." And he describes the undertaking as "That most Famous and Admired Worke of the Runninge Streame from Amwell Head into the Cisterne neere Islington, being the sole Inuention, cost, and Industry of that worthy Maister Hvgh Middleton, of London, Goldsmith, for the generall good of the Citty."

(39) Timothy Myddelton younger son of old Sir Thomas by his 2nd wife Elizabeth Davers. On his marriage in 1614 to Martha daughter and heiress of Robert Johnson, Alderman of London, his father settled the estate of Stanstead-Mountfitchet co. Essex on him. He was a Dep. Lieutenant for Essex. At the breaking out of the Civil War he threw in his lot with the Parliament, and was an active member of the Eastern association, and was appointed High Sheriff for Essex on 30 Dec. 1643 for the year ensuing. In 1646 he was a Commissioner for the sale of Lands. He died in 1655.

(40) Son of Thomas Chaloner of Chester, Ulster King at Arms.

1621.	Payd Dd the Joyner for making a pewe in the est sid of ye Church[43]	1	5	0

(43) The setting up of this and other pews in the chancel of Chirk Church—the right to do which Sir Thomas claimed as lay rector—was the cause of some friction between the Myddeltons and the Trevors: so much so, that Sir Thomas exhibited a bill on 4 May 6 Car. I in the Court of the Marches of Wales against Sir Edward Trevor of Brinkinallt and others: setting forth, That about ten years ago he, Sir Thomas, erected three pews in the chancel one being for himself another for his wife and the other for the vicar, and about the same time, at the request of Sir Edward Trevor, gave him permission to erect a pew in the chancel for himself, wife and friends, which he enjoyed by the permission of Sir Thomas. That there was on the south side of the chancel until eight years ago a large strong chest for the keeping the ornaments, vestments and other treasure of the church, when it was removed to a more convenient place in the church, and another pew made in the place where it stood for Sir Thomas, his children and friends to sit and kneel in to hear Divine service; which accordingly they did enjoy until the 25 May last 1629 when one John Yale, kinsman and servant of Sir Edward Trevor did in "most wrongfull manner" enter into the said pew and disturbed Sir Thomas; and afterwards on 31 May following one Roger John Phillip by like procurement of the said Sir Edward did disturb the children and friends of Sir Thomas to sit and kneel therein. He prays that Sir Edward Trevor and his accomplices may set forth what right they have in and to the chancel which of right belongs only to the Rector.

Sir Edward Trevor contended that he and his ancestors and the Trevors of the Hope did usually sit in the south chancel to hear divine service as appertaining to their antient houses in Brinkinallt: that the antient seats in the said chancel belonged to the gentry and their houses, which is the case for the most part throughout Wales: that the burial place there had been used time out of mind for such as did die out of Sir Edward Trevor's house, as his uncle Roger Trevor, his mother Margaret Trevor, his brother John Trevor and his eldest daughter Magdalen was buried, since the erecting, and close without the door of the pew in variance, and none other buried on that side the chancel during memory. The Trevors of the Hope from whom Sir Richard Trevor claimeth and Sir Edward Trevor's ancestors descended from two brothers, and the lands in Brinkinallt came between them by gavel kind, and the place where the seat is belonged to both houses, in Brinkinallt ucha, and Brinkinallt issa. That the Trevors coat of arms is in the said south window above the said seat and hath been there time out of mind, and in all likelihood the Trevors built the church. That Mr. Edwards of Chirk, who is also lineally descended from Theoder [Tudor] Trevor as Sir Edward Trevor is, hath his seat under the north window with the like arms there. That in the upper end of the church the chancel did heretofore extend throughout both the north and south aisles until Sir Thomas Myddelton erected certain pews. The large and strong chest did heretofore stand in the east end of the south chancel by the wall side, upon which chest the sexton, strangers, and children were permitted to sit at their pleasure: and that antiently time out of mind there was an ancient settle of wood in the nature of a chest with lids opening above to put books into upon which settle or bench this defendant, and John Trevor his father, and Edward Trevor his grandfather usually sat upon to hear Divine service without contradiction, and did put their books into the said settle after service to keep them till the next time they came to church; and this defendant did see Robert Trevor of the Hope and John Trevor his son usually sit upon the said settle or bench in their own right, whose right and estate of the said Robert Trevor, Sir Richard Trevor now claimeth: and for preserving thereof this defendant believeth that he hath appointed Roger John Phillip his servant and tenant to sit in the same place. And that there stood a large standing high desk before the said settle or bench for to hold the books of this defendant and his ancestors, which said settle and desk after the decease of this defendant's father and grandfather, or after the removal of this defendant's father to the parish of St. Martins there to dwell, and during the time this defendant was employed in the late Queen's and late King's service and wars in foreign countries, were removed by Sir Thomas Myddelton and Robert Lloyd now vicar, of purpose to extinguish the defendant's right. Which said settle or chest this defendant hath found out to be "maymed" and cut, part whereof remaineth in the possession of one Catherine Oliver widow in Chirk, being niece unto the said vicar or to his wife, and wife to the late sexton, and the said desk has been obscurely cast to the tower end of the church. And about ten years past this defendant set up a pew in the said chancel in his own right by the assent of the bishop and chancellor of the diocese of St. Asaph, by removing a pew that the vicar had placed there a year before at the charge of the parish: and about nine years ago this defendant did see a "fayre piece of Wenscott" sett up in the east end of the said south chancel, being above the Communion table with a seat before it, and within a short time after did see a "wainscot pew" of the same or like work set in the upper end of the said chancel adjoyning to the said wainscot: which when this defendant did see, short time after did demand of the vicar by whose authority it had been done. It does not appear how the matter ended. To day the large pew at the east end of the north aisle appertains to the Castle, and has done so within the memory of man.

(47) Sir Richard Pryse of Goggerdan co. Cardigan, Knt., created a Baronet 9 Aug. 1641 : married 3 Aug. 1628 at All Saints' Edmonton, Hester daughter of Sir Hugh Myddelton, the projector of the New River : he was buried in Westminster Abbey, 21 Oct. 1651.

(48) Oliver Maurice of Tan y Llwyn, sixth son of Maurice ap Meredydd of Lloran Uchaf co. Denbigh, attorney of the Common Pleas in London.

(49) John Edwards of Stansty in the parish of Wrexham, for many years in the Castle service. As Recorder of the lordship of Chirk he held a court at Llangollen 5 Jan. 1627. He was much employed in writing the great register book which contained copies of deeds and other records relating to the estate, which testifies to his neat hand-writing. He married Joan, daughter and heiress of Edward Jones, who survived him and proved his will 21 Sept. 1631. For a pedigree of the family see Mr. A. N. Palmer's Hist. of Wrexham v. p. 188.

(50) Of Glascoed in the parish of Llansilin, son of Gryffydd Kyffin of Cae Coch co. Montgomery. He spent much of his time at Chirk Castle, and from the frequency with which his name occurs in connection with its affairs apparently lived there, in a position of trust, from 1628 to 1650. The accounts from 1646 to Dec. 1650 are in his handwriting. Some letters preserved there testify to his beautiful calligraphy.

He was clerk of the Peace for the county of Denbigh in 1647 and 1659 and most likely during the intervening years. On 11 Apl. 1648 he was appointed Treasurer of the Maimed Soldiers' mize for Denbighshire for the year ensuing, and in 1652, and again in conjunction with Foulk Myddelton Esq., of Gwaynynog for the year 1666. In 1652 and 1658 his name occurs as Steward to his brother-in-law Col. John Jones for his manor of Vchterwin. In 1654 he was Recorder of the lordship of Chirk—which office he appears to have held until 1661—High Sheriff for Denbighshire in 1662 and for Montgomeryshire in 1663. He married at Chirk, on Michaelmas Day 1633, Catherine daughter of John Edwards of Stansty, by whom he had, with other issue, Margaret who became the wife of Sir William Williams, Speaker of the House of Commons and Solicitor General to James II, ancestor of the present Sir H. L. Watkin Williams-Wynn Bart. of Wynnstay. He was buried at Llansilin 7 July 1670.

(51) Richard Lloyd, vicar of Ruabon 1615-42, and Rector of Marchwiel, both co. Denbigh. In 1639 he was tutor to Sir Thomas' children. He married Jane daughter of Roderick Hughes of Maes y pandy, by whom he was father of Revd. John Lloyd, who succeeded him as Rector of Marchwiel.

(52) Son of Sir Hugh Myddelton who made the New River, bapt. at St. Matthew's, Friday St. 14 May 1607. In December 1637 he was appointed Keeper of his Majesty's Garden, Distiller of, "Sweete Herbes and Waters," and Keeper of the Library, at Whitehall; and also one of the Serjeants-at-Arms, worth together £500 a year. When the Civil War broke out he took the side of the Parliament and had the command of a Troope of Horse under the Earl of Manchester. On 23 Feb. 1645-6 he was Serjeant-at-Arms attending the Great Seal; and was one of those who in 1647 were appointed to attend on the King at Holmby House in Northamptonshire. In 1651 the Council of State ordered a payment of £20 to be made to him for attending the High Court of Justice at Norwich as Sergeant-at-Arms. He owned a share in the New River and was present at the Board meeting held at Gregory Hardwick's House in St. Paul's Chain, 13 Nov. 1662.

(53) Col. Sir Thomas Salusbury, Knt., and Bart., son of Sir Henry Salusbury 1st Bart. of Llewenny, by his wife Hester daughter of the 1st Sir Thos. Myddelton; was born at Chirk Castle 5th March 1612. In 1636 he published a poem called "The History of Joseph," dedicated to his "honoured grandmother," Lady Myddelton (née Davers): He married Hester daughter of Sir Edward Tyrrell, Bart., of Thornton, co. Bucks, and was sworn burgess of Denbigh 10 Sept. 1632. He died fighting for the King at Worcester and was buried at Whitchurch, Denbigh, 13th July 1643. (P. Roberts' Diary: Bodfari Par. Regrs.)

(54) Robert Lloyde M.A. vicar of Chirk, sinecure rector of Llandyssil 1625; born at Dolyr avonddv. In 1630 he stated that he was then 58 years of age and had been vicar of Chirk for 18 years. He had a son John Lloyd M.A. who became vicar of Chirk after him; and a daughter Jane Lloyd, who was buried at Llandyssil 26 Sept. 1633.

(55) Rev. John Lloyd son of Rev. Richard Lloyd D.D., Rector of Marchwiel whom he succeeded in 1641: matric. Jesus Coll. Oxford 2 Nov. 1621 aged 19; B.A. 13 Feb. 162$\frac{2}{3}$; M.A. 21 June 1625; Doctor of Physic. In a letter, dated May 1639, which Sir Thomas wrote on his behalf to the Bishop of Bangor, he says, "I can give good testimony of him, he having lived with me many years." He was Prebendary of Llanfair 1660; Warden of Ruthin, 1663; comportioner of Llansannan and Archdeacon of Merioneth, 1666. He was Sir Thomas' family physician in which profession he appears to have had no small skill. By his will, which was dated 11 Nov. 1667 and proved in P.C.C. 3 Nov. 1668, after giving twenty shillings to his loving brother Samuel Lloyd, he left all he had to his loving sister Katherine Lloyd whom he made sole executrix. He appointed as overseers his loving brother Humphrey Lloyd, afterwards Bishop of Bangor, and his honoured uncle Rev. Michael Hughes, Vicar of Chirk. He was buried at Marchwiel 11 Apl. 1668.

(56) Of Denn in the parish of Horsham, brother-in-law to Sir Thomas. He married, as already stated, Christian 2nd daughter of Sir Robt. Napier of Luton Hoo. On 20 and 21 Aug. 1653 he conveyed his estates in the counties of Sussex and Kent to trustees (Sir Robert Napier, Sir Thomas Myddelton and Thos. Myddelton Esq. his son and heir) for the benefit after the death of himself and wife without leaving issue (which happened) of his only brother Ashton Ersfeild and his heirs male; failing these to the sons in succession of Sir Thomas Ersfeild, Knt. late of Hollington deceased. He charged the estates with £100 a year to his sister Bridgett the wife of John Shelly gent. of Sullington, and £50 a year to his sister Grace the wife of Thos. White, and with the payment in certain contingencies—which happened—of £4,000 and £1,000 respectively to his said sisters Bridgett and Grace. He died in Dec. 1653.

(57) "Want of Charity justly charged on all such Romanists as dare affirm that Protestancy destroyeth Salvation, &c. Oxon. 1633," by Dr. Christopher Potter, Dean of Worcester. Dr. Walter Balcanquall, Dean of Durham, died at Chirk Castle on Christmas Day 1645, and he was designed to succeed him, but he died before he was installed.

(58) The well known Sir Miles Hobart, M.P. for Great Marlow: stepson to the 1st Sir Thos. Myddelton.

(59) The two eldest daughters of Sir Thomas Myddelton and Mary Napier. Elizabeth, born in 1619, became the wife of Sir George Warburton, Bart. of Arley. Mary, born 26 Nov. 1620, married on Saturday 30th Dec. 1638 at the private chapel in Chirk Castle to Sir John Wittewronge, Bart. of Rothamsted; by him she was the mother of Sir John Wittewronge 2nd Bart. She died in London of the small pox on Saturday night about 11 o'clock, being Easter Eve 4 Apl. 1639, and was buried in Westham Church, co. Essex. Her husband has recorded of her that, "Shee was a person, who, for her many excellent virtues more particularly her singular piety and learning, her judiciousness in and studiousness about the best thinges that left not many equalls behind her, and dyed justly lamented of all that knew her."

(60) Sir Tho^s. Savage of Rock Savage co. Chester, eldest son and heir of Sir John Savage, 1st Bart., of the same place, whom he succeeded 14 July 1615. He was created Viscount Savage 4 Nov. 1626; married 14 May 1602 Elizabeth eldest daughter of Thomas Darcy, Baron Darcy of Chiche. In 1626 he was first commissioner of trade, Chancellor to the Queen Consort 1628, and Councillor to her in 1634. He died of, "the running gout," at his house in Tower hill, London, 20 Nov. 1635 aged about 55, and was buried at Macclesfield.

(61) His father the 1st Sir Thomas, together with Alderman Rowland Heylin, Robt. Bateman, Chamberlain of London and others were in 1631 Commissioners for the same purpose.

(62) In 1632 Tho^s. Morris had a lease for three lives of a tenement called Braich y gist, in the parish of Llanarmon-Dyfryn-Ceriog: the herriot of 50^s due on his death was paid on 17 May 1651.

(63) Thomas, eldest son of the 2nd Sir Thomas Myddelton, was appointed governor of the Castle by the Parliament on 7 March 164$\frac{3}{4}$.

(64) Ursula daughter of Sir Henry Salusbury, Bart., of Llewenny, by his wife Hester daughter of the first Sir Thos Myddelton; and wife of Sir Edward Lloyd of Berthlloyd in the parish of Llanidloes co. Montgomery. They were married at the church of St. Mary Aldermary, London, on 21 Dec. 1630, from Sir Thos Myddelton's house which adjoined the churchyard. She died in 1680. He died in 1666, and was buried at Llanidloes 2nd March.

(65) Capt. David Maurice son of Thomas Maurice of Llangedwin. He had served in the war under Sir Thomas, and was now second in command at the Castle. Watkin Kyffin, writing from Chirk Castle on 10 Dec. 1647, "To the hon^ble. Sr Thomas Myddelton, Knight, at Carewe house, in the Strand, London," makes the following reference to his wife:—"Mrs. Morris is brought to bed of a boy since Saterday night last, and is (God be thanked) in as good a case as a woman in her case can be." In 1648, when he is described as of Chirk Castle, gent., he had a lease from Sir Thomas of a house in Halton in the parish of Chirk, called, "The Court," where he lived with his family until his death in 1653. His will bears date 25 Apl., and was proved 29 July 1653, by his widow Ellin Maurice and his father Tho^s Maurice. He leaves his lands in Ruabon and Christionith Kenrick to his daughter Sara, who was by his first wife Elizabeth daughter of Matthew Trevor Esq. of Trevor. She also shares with her step-mother Ellin, in the benefit of testator's "Debentors in the Lops of Bromfield and Yale and elsewhere." The overseers were, "Mr. Morgan Lloyd, Mr. Daniel Lloyd, Watkyn Kyffin, my brother Hugh and my mothe[r] Jane Trevor."

(66) Probably the Capt. Hugh Massey who had served in the Parliamentary Army in 1644, under Sir Thomas.

(67) Red Castle, now called Powis Castle. At the above date it was nearly two years since its capture by the Parliamentary forces under Sir Thomas.

(68) Capt. Rich^{d} Basnett, of Eyton, in the parish of Bangor-iscoed, who fought on the side of the King, was on terms of friendship with Sir Thomas, to whom in 1657 he and his wife Grace—who was a daughter of John Aldersey of Spurstowe gent.—sold the moiety of their demeasne lands in Eyton, then in their possession.

(69) William Herbert I suspect was a brother of Priscilla Herbert. Thos Prichard, an old and faithful servant at the castle, made this note concerning him on 3 Aug. 1666: "My master did at the great parlor in Keven y werne order and appoint xxx^{s} to buy cloathes for William Harbert of Pennyclawdd, and xij^{d} p week during his pleasure, besides my Lady Wynne, m^{ris} Grosvenor, m^{r} Peter Warburton being then in the parlor but not in their hearing." He was buried at Chirk 10 Aug. 1670.

(70) Hester daughter of Sir Edward Tyrrell Bart., of Thornton, co. Bucks, and widow of Sir Thos Salusbury, 2nd Bart. of Llewenny.

(71) Sir John Wittewronge, Knt. and Bart., of Rothamsted in the parish of Harpenden, served the office of Sheriff of Hertfordshire in 1658, and of Montgomeryshire in 1664. He was lord of the manor of Stantonbury, co. Bucks, by purchase. There is preserved at Rothamsted an interesting account of his family which he drew up in the year 1664, in which he states that he was born in London in the year 1618; and that his father dying when he was four years old, his mother, whose name was Anna daughter of Gerard Van Acker of Antwerp, after remaining a widow for some years, married again, to Sir Thomas Myddelton, knt. and alderman of London, "a person who for his wisdom, justice and good government (both in the time of his maiority and afterwards) is untill this day of famous memory in that noble citty. breeding as if I had been his owne child; and I cannot without a huge deale of ingratitude) but acknowledge his care of me was such, that it resembled more an owne father's than a father-in-law; and I shall neede to name but one instance of his affection, which was his earnest desire to match mee into his owne blood, viz. to a grandchild of his, by his eldest sonne; and I was accordingly marryed when wee came to maturity of age."—See note 59. Sir John married secondly Elizabeth daughter of Timothy Myddelton of Stanstead-Mountfitchet, cousin german to his first wife; and, she dying in 1649, he married thirdly Catherine daughter of Maurice Thomson, merchant of London. He died in 1693 and was buried at Harpenden. Portrait at Rothamsted.

(72) Watkin Kyffin's cosen was Richard Myddelton of Bodlith in the parish of Llansilin. He rebuilt the house which was afterwards called Plas Newydd (New Hall); was High Sheriff of Denbighshire in 1650, and died in 1667.

(73) Capt. Edward Taylor in the Parliamentary army, of Bangor-is-coed, son of Thos Taylor of Dutton Diffaeth near Holt ("History of Wrexham," by Mr. A. N. Palmer, F.C.S. iii. p. 4). One Thomas Taylor who had served under him and Capt. Roger Sontley was at the Quarter Sessions held at Ruthin 7 Oct. 1656 allowed a pension of £3 a year formerly paid to the widow Simons, she having married again.

(74) Of Pentre r clawdd in the parish of Ruabon, and afterwards of Erddig in the parish of Wrexham. At the breaking out of the Civil War he took the side of the King and was taken prisoner in the pursuit after the fight at Bangor Bridge in 1643 by the Parliamentary forces under Gen. Mytton and imprisoned: but was released on exchange. Subsequently he changed sides, and in 1647 was admitted, by Serjeant Bradshaw, Chief Justice of Chester, into the office of prothonotary of the counties of Denbigh and Montgomery which he held until 1660. He was steward of the Lordship of Chirk to Sir Thomas Myddelton from 1645-1661: and married firstly, Martha daughter of John Downing of Limehouse and Chatham: and secondly, Christian fourth daughter of Sir Thomas Myddelton, and widow of Roger Grosvenor Esq. of Eaton. Dying 22 April 1677 he was buried at Ruabon, leaving issue by his first wife only.

(75) Elizabeth daughter of Sir Richard Egerton of Ridley, and widow of Peter Warburton Esq., of the Lodge in Crowley, co. Chester. Her son George Warburton —afterwards of Warburton and Arley—created a Baronet 27 June 1660, had married at Chirk 29 Dec. 1641 Sir Thomas' eldest daughter Elizabeth, and this payment was in respect of her portion. They had issue two sons and four daughters who were frequent visitors at the Castle. She died in 1650, and her Funeral order from Sutton to Great Budworth, where she was buried, is given in Harl. MS. 2129. He died 18 May 1676, aged 56.

(76) Richard Bradshaw of Nantwich gent. was appointed by an ordinance of both Houses of Parliament of 21 Sep. 1643 Receiver-General of the King, Queen, and Prince's Revenues in North Wales and Chester, and also of the annual tenths of the clergy within those limits.

(80) Mr. John Erthig of Erthig in the parish of Wrexham, deputy to Robert Sontley of Sontley Esq., High Sheriff of Denbighshire. He was one of the coroners for the county at least from 1645 to 1676, and in 1673 he was churchwarden of Gresford. According to the Quarter Sessions records of 1665 it appears that he had been appointed one of the overseers for the repair of the bridge called Pont Melin Pilston over the river Clewedog. His financial statement in connection therewith gave anything but satisfaction to the Justices.

(81) Probably of Cefn, Abenbury, also deputy sheriff in 1651 and in 1657. In 1658 he was steward to Col. John Jones of his lordship of Bromfield and Yale. He was father of another Roger Griffith, an attorney who was baptised at Wrexham 22 Apl. 1674, who married Elizabeth daughter of Andrew Myddelton, son of Richard Myddelton of Llansilin. See "Hist. of Wrexham" by Mr. A. N. Palmer, F.C.S., 1903, pt. v. p. 143.

(82) The charge of providing bread and wine for the Communion at the parish church of Chirk dated back many years, certainly before the year 1629.

(83) Watkin Kyffin's brother-in-law Jonathan Edwards was the 2nd son of John Edwards of Stansty, who had been in the castle service He matriculated at Jesus College, Oxford, 3 Feb. $16\frac{20}{1}$, aged 18: B.A. 9 June 1634; Fellow M.A. 1637: cr. B.D. 1 Nov. 1642. Rector of Cathedine co. Brecon. There are some letters of his preserved at the castle written from Oxford to his "Loving Brother [in-law] Watkyn Kyffin at Chirk Castle." In one of these, dated Jan. 14 1637 he says, "I pray certify mee if you can, when yong Thom: [Myddelton] comes for Oxon, you will doe me noe meane office if you can pswade S^{r} Thomas to send him to Jesus Coll. not y^{t} I expect

This appeal was in vain, "young Thom" was entered at Oriel College on 20 March $16\frac{39}{40}$.

(84) Carey house in the Strand which stood near the Savoy where Sir Thomas lived when in London. He dates from here when writing to his "good cousin Peter Warburton" on 8 June 1646.

(85) Richard son of Richard Myddelton who was the eldest son of Richard Myddelton, governor of Denbigh Castle: merchant, and free of the Company of Grocers, resided for many years in a house in Leadenhall St. which he held on lease from the Corporation, and which is described as "over against Leadenhall." He was one of the adventurers named in the New River Charter 1619. In 1645 he was assessed at £1,000 by the Committee for the advance of money. Upon his death he was buried in the chancel of St. Peter's Cornhill, 9 Sept. 1652.

(86) It will be remembered that when Sir John Watts delivered up the castle in 1645, he marched away with £1,000 in money, which he had levied on the surrounding district.

(89) Robert son of Sir Hugh Cholmondeley of Cholmondeley in Cheshire, created Earl of Leinster 5 March 21 Car. I. He married Catherine daughter of John Lord Stanhope of Harrington, and died s.p. 2 Oct. 1659.

(90) Anne fourth daughter of Sir Thomas Myddelton and Mary Napier, born at Luton Hoo co. Beds 24 Feb. $162\frac{6}{7}$. was married at Chirk in 1650 to Edward third Lord Herbert of Chirbury and Castle Island. By deed dated 20 Jan. 1657 (the original settlement had been lost) the estate of St. Julians co. Monmouth was settled as part of her jointure. They resided at their mansion house called Llyssin, now a farm house, in the parish of Llanerfyl, about 15 miles from Montgomery. The fine half-timbered Hall of Lymore, near Montgomery, built by this Lord Herbert bears date 1663. She died in 1670 and was buried at Montgomery. He died 9 Dec. 1678.

(91) Richard second Lord Herbert of Chirbury nephew of the saintly George Herbert, and father of Edward third Lord Herbert mentioned in note 90. He died 13 May 1655.

(92) Bickley Hall in the parish of Malpas, the seat of Sir Robert Cholmondeley, created Viscount Cholmondeley and afterwards Earl of Leinster for his zeal in the Royal cause. It was here that he died 2 Oct. 1659, and his body remained for a whole year unburied. On 8 Oct. 1660 he was carried with much pomp to the family vault in Malpas Church. The £700 was doubtless part of the marriage portion of his niece Mary Cholmondeley, who, about this time, became the 1st wife of Sir Thos Myddelton, created a Bart. in 1660.

(93) Perhaps the Hon. Thomas Herbert, who in a deed dated 1 April 1658 is described as of "Castle Island in the county of Kerry in Ireland Esq.," and youngest brother of Edward third Lord Herbert of Chirbury.

(94) Of Wrexham, grocer and postmaster, and a justice of the Peace. He married a sister of Crois of Friday St., London, by whom he was father of a son Joseph and several daughters; he died about the year 1659.—Fam. Min. Gen. i. p. 67.

(95) Second Bart. of Eaton co. Chester. Sir Thomas was acting as mediator between him and Robert Sontley Esq. of Sontley, between whom some difference had arisen about their lead mines.

(96) Col. Robert Sontley of Sontley, the Royalist, who died 5 Sept. 1653.

(97) This probably has reference to the removal by Col. Duckenfield of the garrison, which had been put into the castle pending Sir Thomas taking the engagement and giving security that the castle should not be made use of to the prejudice of the Commonwealth, which had now been complied with.

(98) Of Hunwick, knighted 23 Nov. 1618: disposed of his lands and went with his family to New England. Afterwards he returned and lived in London, and later he settled at Wrexham which was his home at the time of his death, which took place at Crayford in Kent in 1661. His son Richard, born at Woodsome in 1610, was by the first of his three wives, Grace daughter of Robert Kaye Esq. of Woodsome. The fee farm rents continued to be paid to Sir Richard for his son's use till April 1661. In what capacity he received these rents does not appear.

(100) Benjamin Cupper of the family of Llantysdildio in Yale. For many years he was in the Castle service as librarian and book-keeper. His name first occurs as witnessing a deed on 14 March 1648: he lived at Brinkinallt in a house of which he and his wife Jane had a lease for their lives from Sir Thomas, dated 1 Oct. 1666, paying yearly £10 rent, 2 capons, 2 days' work or 3^{s}, and for a herriot the best beast. In 1668 he was churchwarden of Chirk, and died previous to 8 Jan. 1672 on which day his admõrs, of whom Mr. Hughes vicar was one, paid two years' rent. His widow survived him twenty years her will being dated 16 May 1690. This was proved at St. Asaph 31 March 1692 by her son Thos Cupper, who was also in the Castle service.

(101) Major-Gen. Thos Harrison, the regicide and one of the Council of State. When King Charles II. with his Scottish army had slipped away from Cromwell at Stirling Castle, he had been sent in pursuit to harass and impede the enemy's march as much as possible. He had taken part in the final overthrow of the Scots at the then recent battle of Worcester. At the Restoration he was executed at Charing Cross 13 Oct. 1660, Pepys being an eye-witness.

(102) For some time past Sir Thomas' ardour for the Parliament had been cooling, and this fine was probably demanded on account of his Royalist proclivities rather than a relefe after his father's death, which had taken place twenty years before.

(103) His name frequently occurs as the recipient of Sir Thomas' good will. See his burial under the year 1664.

(104) Mounsieur Samuel Myddelton, son of Richard Myddelton of Jersey by his wife Elizabeth le Cousteur. This Richard was grandson of John Middleton of Middleton in the parish of Chirbury, by his wife Elizabeth daughter of Reginald ap Sir Griffith Vychan, knt. His name often occurs as witnessing deeds, which he signed in bold characters. On 4 Aug. 1652 he had a lease for life from Sir Thos Myddelton, of a tenement in Brinkinallt, "wherein Robert Lloyd, clerk lately dwelt," but he lived as one of the family at the castle. The inscription on the brass to his memory in Chirk Church states that he lived at the castle for sixty years, and that he died there in 1678, aged 98.

(105) Elder daughter of Roger Grosvenor Esq., of Eaton. by his wife Christian, fifth daughter of Sir Thomas. She was born 16 Jan. being Thursday after 2 in the morning 1650, as recorded in Sloane MS. 2266, where also the births of her brothers and sister are recorded by their mother. Sydney was a frequent visitor at the Castle, often simply mentioned as "Mrs. Sydney." She married in 1671 Nicholas Bagnall Esq., of Plas Newydd in Anglesey.

(106) Of Plas Yolyn in the parish of Ysyptty Ieuan co. Denbigh, of which he was lord of the manor, grandson of Capt. Thomas Price, soldier and poet, of the same place. He sold the antient inheritance of Plas Yolyn to Sir Thomas Myddelton, who, on 1 Oct. 15 Car. II., 1663 granted him a lease of it for the lives of himself, and wife and their daughter Elizabeth. His wife was a Warwickshire lady, a Miss Elizabeth Webster, who survived him. In 1670 she was rated for four hearths in respect of Plas Yolyn, and she was living a widow in 1681. Their daughter Elizabeth, on her marriage to Robert Edwards Esq., of Gallt y celyn in the same parish, carried what property remained into that family.

(107) Christian Myddelton fifth daughter of Sir Thomas was born 5 Nov. 1629: married at Chirk 16 Apl 1650, Roger eldest son and heir of Sir Richard Grosvenor, 2nd Bart., of Eaton by whom she had issue six children, Thomas who succeeded his grandfather as 3rd Bart., Robert, John, Roger, Sydney, and Anne: all of whom were often at the Castle. From this marriage the present Duke of Westminster, Lord Ebury, &c., descend. Roger Grosvenor was a J.P. and of the Quorum for Denbighshire. He took part in the Cheshire Rising in 1659, and was nominated to be one of the Knights of the Royal Oak. He was killed in a duel at Chester Races 22 Aug. 1661. It happened in this way. He said that if any one rode near his footman who was that day to run a race, he would either kill or be killed by him. It would appear that Major Roberts of Havoddybwch did so, for Grosvenor switched him and drew on him, but the Major killed him with his sword. Before he died he owned it was his own fault. His widow afterwards married John Edisbury Esq., of Erddig, and died in 1670.

(108) Col. Robt Duckenfield was governor of Chester at this time.

(110) In the parish of Dudleston the seat of Thomas Edwards Esq., son of Francis Edwards of the same place who was first cousin of Sir Francis Edwards, Bart., of Shrewsbury. Thomas Edwards was an old friend of the family. Sir Thos Myddelton, writing to Watkin Kyffin from London under date 5 Dec. 1639 says: "Let Mr. Thomas Edwards of Kilhendre haue a doe of the season: tell John Hughes [to] take care to kill a good one: and if you take any salmans, lett him haue one: and this shall be your warrant for so doing." He died 29 May 1667 aged 75.

(111) He was a servant of Roger Grosvenor Esq. In a rental of Sir Richard Grosvenor for the year 1667, Edward Arnell's name appears as a tenant under Macefen in the parish of Malpas for late ffabian Bellingham who had formerly had a lease of his holding for the lives of himself, John Bellingham son of William Bellingham of Wrexham, and Robert Roe of Buckley; the date 19 Apl. 1645 appears on the outside margin which is probably the date of the lease.

(113) John Bell apothecary of Wrexham whose name is of frequent occurrence, married Dorothy daughter of Matthew Trevor Esq., of Trevor, who survived him and was buried at Llangollen 8 Nov. 1703.

(114) John Vaughan als Foulkes had a lease, 9 Car. I. for 21 years, from Sir Thos Myddelton, of Moelewig Park (now called the Lodge) near Denbigh, at the yearly rent of £100. He was sent to prison for arrears of rent. At the trial Vaughan stated in his defence that he had been imprisoned for refusing to pay his rent for the years 1643 and 1644 to Sir John Watts who had been put in possession of Chirk castle, and could only obtain his release by paying him, Sir John abating £20 on account of the great charge he, Vaughan, had been at in quartering the King's forces in the year 1644. The premises were at Denbigh's townsend and therefore subject to daily troubles and quarterings: wherefore and in regard to the keeping of the horses of the said Sir John Watts for a long time in the year 1645, Sir John did accept of £60 for that year. And in 1646 Parliament laid siege to the castle of Denbigh and then he had no profits, for his lands lay open and waste; what there was the Army took to their own use. He hopes that Sir Thos will be satisfied for the years 1643 to 1646. We will presume that he was not too hardly dealt with, for the Vaughan family were for generations afterwards tenants of the same property. John Vaughan married, before 2 Oct. 1633, Lucy only daughter and heiress of Robert Parry, gent

(115) Sir Thomas' sons Joseph, Charles and Timothy were sent to Selattyn in Shropshire under the tuition of Rev. Thos Wilding M.A. Fellow of Christ's College, Cambridge. He was made Rector of Selattyn in 1659, and was buried there 6 Apl. 1678. Selattyn Par. Regrs by Hon. Mrs. Bulkeley-Owen.

(116) Of Billinge in Lancashire, one of the doctors in ordinary to King Charles I. He was at this time between 60 and 70 years of age, and had been married three times: firstly to Frances daughter of Richard Grosvenor of Eaton, High Sheriff of Cheshire in 1602, by whom he had no issue to survive; secondly at Kensington Parish Church on 8 Apl. 1630, to Alice daughter of John Lawrence of Tutsham Hall in Kent, who died in 1639, and lies buried in Chester Cathedral; and he married thirdly Sara daughter of Edward Wilmott of Derbyshire, and died in London in 1664.

(117) The garden mentioned in these accounts generally refers to the walled garden of some acres area, at Black Park, two miles distant from Chirk village, on the right hand side of the road going towards Ruabon. It was made by the 2nd Sir Thomas Myddelton, and his initials, T.M., with a rose between and the date 1651, are still to be seen cut in stone over the archway of a door in the grounds. Here was laid out a most choice collection of trees, plants, flowers and herbs, and it might be truly said of it there was "the purest of human enjoyments and the greatest refreshment to the spirits of man." It contained a banquetting house for the entertainment of friends which was convenient to those travelling north and south through the village, and were thus saved nearly two miles' journey to the Castle. It is at the present day let out as a market garden, but still bears traces of its former splendour.

(118) Probably Lodowick Middleton of Churchstoke. He had a daughter named Ruth baptised there on 9 Apl. 1629.

(119) Third Baronet of Llewenny, son of Sir Thos Salusbury second Baronet, born 8 and privately baptised at Llewenny 10 June 1634. It is surmised that Sir Thos Myddelton, and Sir Roger Mostyn were godfathers, for they were present with their wives at his being received into the Church at Bodfari on 29 June following. Sir Edward Broughton of Marchwiel Hall and his wife Frances (aunt to the child) second daughter of Sir Edward Tyrrell, Bart., of Thornton, Bucks, and the young Lady Mostyn, widow of Sir Thomas Mostyn of Mostyn, were also present. He matriculated at Queen's College, Oxford, 4 Nov. 1651; was made burgess of Denbigh 31 Jan. 1652-3, capital burgess 13 Sep. 1653, and died without issue in 1658, when he was succeeded by his brother John, fourth and last Baronet of Llewenny.

(120) Son of Hugh Drihurst of Denbigh. He was now "an old poore man decayed in his estate." Formerly he had an allowance of £4 a year from funds in the hands of the Corporation of Denbigh, like his father before him, but this had not been paid since the late troublous times. Sir Thomas wrote on 12 July 1649 to Col. Twistleton, Governor of Denbigh on his behalf, for a renewal of the payment. See "Ant. and Modern Denbigh," by Rev. J. Williams, 1856, p. 244. It will be remembered that Jane daughter of Hugh Drihurst of Denbigh, the wife of Richard Myddelton, governor of Denbigh castle, was by him the mother of sixteen children, is commemorated in the monumental brass in the porch of Whitchurch, Denbigh. There is a facsimile of this brass at Chirk Castle, which came from Gwaynynog.

(121) Probably the same as Henry Jones who, with six others, were appointed overseers at the Quarter Sessions held at Wrexham 12 July 1659, for the erection of a Shire Hall at Wrexham.

(122) Capt. in Royal army. In 1666, being reduced in circumstances owing as he stated to "always remaining faithful" to King Charles I., and King Charles II., he obtained a pension from the "maimed soldiers' mize," which continued to be paid to him till at least Jan. 1681. He was untiring in his application to the Castle for pecuniary assistance. Married about the year 1641 to Mary Jones, who was an orphan, both being under 21 years of age. She was a granddaughter of William Griffith, and had an interest in a small property at Flint, under a lease from William Ravenscroft Esq. of Bretton. She was buried at Flint 22 March 1678.

(123) Her husband died previous to 1647, as she then appears as his widow in a list of Denbigh tenants, paying 10^{s} a year. He was no doubt a relation of Robert Lathom Esq. of Denbigh, whose daughter Jane, the wife of William Myddelton, Feltmaker of Denbigh, was living 6 Aug. 1618.

(124) No doubt the well known John Parkinson, apothecary to James I. and Charles I. He published his Theatrum Botanicum: The Theatre of Plants an Herball of large extent, &c. 1640: his "Paradisi in sole Paradisus Terrestris"; or "A Choice Garden of all sorts of rarest Flowers, &c.," was published in 1629. See under date 30 Jan. 1655.

(125) Not in Brit. Mus. catalogue.

(147) Attorney-at-law, son of Robert Lloyd of Plas Madoc in the parish of Llansannan: he conducted the ordinary legal business of the Castle onwards from this date to the time of his death. He lived at Berse—probably in the household of Humphrey Lloyd, whose daughter Anne he married. After her death without issue he married in 1672 Elizabeth daughter of John Myddelton of Fish St. Hill, London, by whom he was father among others of Revd. Thomas Lloyd of Plas Power. From the date of his second marriage to the time of his death in January $168\frac{5}{6}$ he lived in Wrexham.

(148) Of Fish St Hill, a younger son of Capt. Roger Myddelton of Cadwgan: citizen and free of the Grocers' Coy. London. Lord Herbert of Chirbury writing to him on 31 March 1660 addresses him as his "cosen" living "at the Starr in New Fish St. Hill, London." He was still living there in 1662. By 1672 he had moved to the sign of "The Rose" in Gracechurch St: and when he made his will on 11 Nov. 1678 and which was proved at London 2 Feb. $168\frac{8}{7}$ he was living at Blackwell Hall, Basinghall St. He married Elizabeth daughter of John Ashwell Esq. by whom he left issue.

(149) Keven y werne, in the parish of Chirk, for generations was the seat of an important family of Edwards. On 19 Jan. 15 Car. I, 1637, Major John Edwards, Gaynor his wife, and their son and heir John Edwards mortgaged the estate to Richard Dutton, alderman of Chester for £1350, who subsequently became possessed of it. Dutton was a royalist and consequently suffered in his estate. Holding a Captain's commission he was in the Castle at its surrender to Lambert in Aug. 1659. A view of Keven y wern is shown in the west view of the Chirk Castle by Badeslade and Toms, dated 1735.

(159) Eldest son and heir of Richard second Lord Herbert of Chirbury whom he succeeded on 13 May 1655. Like his father he was a staunch Royalist, and embraced the first opportunity to manifest his loyalty to Charles II, and with a large number of kinsmen and friends, concerted measures for unfurling the royal Standard in Shropshire. But, being betrayed in his premature design, he readily joined with Sir George Booth and his father-in-law Sir Thos. Myddelton in the manifestation made by the Royalists in Cheshire with a view to the restoration of their exiled monarch. On the failure of this attempt he was imprisoned, but speedily restored by the Committee of Public Safety. After the Restoration of the King he was constituted Custos Rotulorum of Montgomeryshire 24 Aug. 1660 and in 1666 was appointed to the like office for Denbighshire. In Feb. 166¾ he was appointed Chief Forester in Snowdon Forest; Chief Constable of Conway Castle and Steward of the Manors, &c. belonging to the late Monastery of Bardsey. He married 1stly, Anne fourth daughter of Sir Thos. Myddelton, who died in 1670; and 2ndly, Elizabeth one of the daughters and coheirs of George Lord Chandos—by neither of whom had he issue. He died at his Lodging in the Old Palace Yard at Westminster 9 Dec. 1678 in the 46th year of his age and was buried in St. Edmund's Chapel in Westminster Abbey. He was universally esteemed for his prudence bravery and loyalty. Powys Land Club Pub. v. 7.

Disbursm^ts^ in the Cheshire[258] Expedition 1659

(257) Acton in the parish of Wrexham, the seat of John Jeffreys, High Sheriff in 1655. By his wife Margaret daughter of Sir Thos. Ireland of Bewsey, he was father of several children, one of whom was afterwards the notorious Judge Jeffreys.

(258) The Cheshire expedition planned for 1 Aug. 1659 and headed by Sir George Booth and Sir Thomas Myddelton, was part of a plan for a general rising throughout England in favour of the Restoration of Charles II. Sir Thomas, accompanied by what force he could muster, marched to Chester, proclaiming the King at Wrexham on the way. Chester opened its gates: but the castle, under the command of Col. Croxton, refused to admit him. Sir Thomas, acting as governor, remained there for about a fortnight and was joined by many of the surrounding gentry, Sir George Booth, being engaged in drawing forces together in Lancashire. Randle Holme (Harl. MS. 2129), records that at Chester on Sunday 6 [should be 7] Aug. Sir Thomas Myddelton, Governor, Col. John Booth [uncle of Sir George] with all the captains and commanders went to St. Werburghs Church, Mr. Rawson being then the minister of the parish, offerred up prayers for King Charles II. to the no little joy of the people, which drew tears from the eyes of many. The forces left Chester to meet Lambert who had been sent against them, and reached Northwich on the evening of 18 Aug. The next morning they took up their position in battle array about half a mile south of the town. Lambert, who had quartered that night at the village of Weverham, was eager to begin the attack. The fight was sharp and soon over and ended disastriously for the Royalists who tried to make good their retreat behind Winnington Bridge; which they did, Lambert says, writing to the Council of State the following day, without any other loss than that of reputation. He estimated the Royalist forces at about 2,000, and adds that the horse on both sides fought like Englishmen. Few were killed but many prisoners were taken. The horse in their retreat divided, some making for Warrington pursued by Lambert, and others for Chester. Amongst the latter were Sir Thomas Myddelton and Lord Kilmorey who reached Chirk Castle in safety, but left again before Lambert's arrival to besiege it. Sir Thomas made his way to London, and it is said that he fled to the Continent. On 11 Sept. a reward was offered to such as could find out Sir Thomas Myddelton, Col. Robt. Worden and Mr. William Ravenscroft. Sir Thomas was eventually secured and had later on to take his trial along with Sir George Booth who had been taken on 23 Aug. Amongst the prisoners taken were Col. Henry Brooke, Major Peter Brooke, sometime member of Parliament, Major Gen. Broughton, Mr. Francis Cholmondeley, Capt. Thomas Cholmondeley of Vale Royal, Capt. Rcbt. Cotton of Combermere, Capt. Dutton, Capt. Thos. Davies, Capt. Wotton Davies, Mr. John Edwards [of Chirk], Major Gen. Randolph Egerton, Philip Egerton, Esq., Cornet Thos. Grosvenor, son of Sir Richard, Capt. Leche of Carden, Charles Needham, Viscount Kilmorey, Col. Wm. Massey of Chester, Sir William Neale, Thos. Needham brother of Viscount Kilmorey, and Sir Thomas Powell of Horsley.

(267) Edward Vaughan of Llwydiarth co. Montgomery, High Sheriff of Denbighshire 1659 and 1660. On 30 Aug. in the first year of his shrivialty writing to the Council of State he says, that when living at his house on the 3 Aug. previously he was violently seized by a company of soldiers under Capts. Sontley and Manley rudely handled, and with 2 servants and horses, carried prisoner to Shrewsbury where he has since been confined close prisoner. He appears to have soon afterwards regained his liberty. He was M.P. for Montgomery in 1661 and for that county in 1679. A Knight had to pay for his pole £20; an esquire £10; the rest of Sir Thomas' family who were over 16 years of age paid, if single 1s. each, if married 6d. each.

(268) Capt. Edward Jones, fought in the Royal army. He was son of Edward Jones of Pen y brin in the parish of St. Martins, Shropshire by Katherine sister of Richard Wynne of Pentre Morgan: was comprised within the Articles at the surrender of Harlech Castle: he married Katherine Boase of Elfort co. Stafford, her sister married Owen Barton.

(269) Fourth Baronet of Llewenny. He took an active part in the affairs of the county. We find him serving the office of alderman of Denbigh in conjunction with Foulk Myddelton of Gwaynynog in 1661 and 1662, and again in 1675 in conjunction with Sir Richard Wynn of Gwydir and the following year they served as coroners for the borough. He was alderman again in 1676 with Mutton Davies of Llannerch. At the Quarter Sessions held at Ruthin 14 July 1673 he and Edward Brereton Esq., of Burras were appointed Treasurers of the maimed soldiers' mize for the year following: he sat in Parliament for Denbigh from 1661 to the time of his death 26 Apl. 1684: married at Llanrwst 29 Apl. 1664 Jane daughter of Edward Williams of Werg, and dying without issue his estates devolved on his sister Hester, wife of Sir Robert Cotton, Bart., of Combermere.

(274) £1300 was the price paid for Caervallen in the parish of Llanbedr. It had been the home of the Turbridge family for generations. This Robert Turbridge married Anne, daughter of Samuel Mostyn of Calcot co. Flint, by whom he had an only child Anne, who was married on 27 May 1685 at St. Hilary's Chapel, Denbigh, to John Myddelton, Esq., of Gwaynynog, to whom she brought the estate of Plas Turbridge also in the parish of Llanbedr. Plas Turbridge was sold by Revd. Robt. Myddelton D.D. of Gwaynynog in 1803 to Rev. Mr. Jones of Hawarden for 6,000 guineas.

(275) John Matthews Esq. of Trefnanney co. Montgomery and John Matthews his son were at this time keepers of the Original judicial Seal for the counties of Denbigh, Flint, and Montgomery, and their family had held the office for many years previously. As new Seals had been made at the Restoration by Thos. Rawlins, the King's chief engraver, the entry may have reference to the superseded ones. One wonders however how they came to be in the possession of Mrs. Meredith, for it was not for many years afterwards that Mr. Ellis Meredith of Pentrebychan was appointed keeper of the Seal.

(283) By Isaak Walton, the 3rd edition appeared in 1661.

(284) Dr. John Barwick, Dean of St. Paul's, between whom and Sir Thomas a friendship had long existed. He suffered considerably for his zeal shown in the Royal cause; he had been the means of inter-communication between King Charles II. during his exile and the Royalists in England. The Cabinet is probably the one of great value now at the Castle, which was given by the King at the Restoration to Sir Thos. Myddelton on his refusing a Peerage.

(285) Sir Wm. Ryder of Kirby Castle, Bethnal Green, in the parish of Stepney, Lord Mayor of London 1600-1. There are several references to him and his family in Pepys' Diary. It was to Sir William's house that Pepys moved his goods for safety during the Fire of London; after having done which he complacently adds, "I am well eased at my heart to have my treasure so well secured." Sir William married Priscilla, daughter of Capt. Roger Tweedy; died at Bethnal Green and was buried at St. Andrew Undershaft 9 Sept. 1669. By his will he left to his daughter Elizabeth Myddelton and her husband Richard Myddelton £100 each, and the like sum to each of their "prettie Babies," Richard, Elizabeth and Mary Myddelton.

(286) Lithuania was united to Poland in 1569.

(310) Of Combermere. See note 219.

(311) During the years 1664 and 1665 payments amounting to £1,154 13s. 1d. were made for the rebuilding of Plas Baddy afterwards called New Hall, with the object of encouraging Charles and his wife Jane Needham, the famous beauty, to settle in the country. Mr. G. S. Steinman, F.S.A., writing in 1864, thus describes the house: "Over the porch, which is of the period, with fluted columns, are the arms of Myddelton—Argent on a bend vert three wolves' heads erased of the field, surmounted by an esquire's helmet with mantling. The crest, Out of a ducal coronet or, a dexter hand proper. The motto, 'In veritate triumpho.' On each side of the helm is a smaller shield, that on the right containing the monogram for "Carolus" and 'Jana'; that on the left the particle 'et.' On a fine old oak door within the porch are the letters 'C.M.'; and there is a handsome wide Elizabethan oak staircase in the house, and high newell posts and pendants. The other interior vestiges of antiquity, chimney pieces, ceilings, &c., were all removed some twenty-five years ago, when the hall was modernised." It is clear that Charles and his wife made New Hall their home for some time, but the Court had far greater attractions for the frail Beauty.

(312) Brother-in-law to Thos Prichard the writer.

(313) On 12 Sep. 34 Eliz. Sir Thomas Myddelton the elder had a lease of Moelewig Park assigned to him by Robert Hutton Esq., to whom it had been leased by the Earl of Leicester 21 Feb. 25 Eliz. From 1592 onwards it appears to have been held by the Castle family under a fee farm rent. In a deed dated 14 May 18 Car. II., it is recited that two-thirds of Moelewig Park had been purchased by Sir Thomas from Mary Masters widow and Sarah Sparke, then in the tenure of Foulk Myddelton, Esq., of Gwaynynog.

(316) The christening of a child of Richard Mytton, Esq., of Halston by his wife Rebecca, daughter of Roger Kynaston Esq., of Hordley, co. Salop.

(317) Formerly called Lacey's wood, and afterwards Dackers or Dacres wood from William Dacres, who came from the north, having settled there about the time of Henry VII. By his will which is dated 23 June 1520 and proved at London 15 Oct. following, he desired to be buried, "in the ffreres of Denbigh." His only child Mary became the wife of Foulk Lloyd of the Foxhall family who died in 1568, when the property passed to his second son Henry Lloyd who was living in 1596 and married Gwen, daughter of David Lloyd of Blodwell in the parish of Llansilin. Richard Parry who married Dorothy, the eldest of the three sisters, had a lease of Dacres wood on 16 Aug. 17 Car. II. to hold the same in as ample manner as the same was purchased from Pierse Lloyd, paying yearly £8, a goose at Christmas, two capons at Easter, 2 days work or 4^s 6^d and a herriot of 13^s 4^d at death. His widow paid the rent from 1676 to 15 Dec. 1680.

(318) He was buried at Wrexham 19 Aug. 1683, when, Mr. A. N. Palmer states he was described as schoolmaster.

(319) Church wakes were held on the day on which the church in any parish was dedicated. Chirk Church is dedicated to St. Mary, and the wakes appear to have been kept within the octave of the feast of the Assumption, which is on 15 Aug.

(320) The frequent occurrence of his name clearly indicates that he was in some way related to the family. He is not, however, to be confused with Thomas ap Robert, glover of Denbigh, the second husband of Margaret, daughter of Richard Myddelton, governor of Denbigh castle, which Margaret is described as a widow and aged 66 in 1622. We are informed that his burial is not recorded in the Wrexham Register.

THE CONSOLOTARY SOLOQUIES OF Sr THOMAS MYDDELTON IN HIS SOLITUDE & SICKNES BEFORE HIS DEATH.

I wonder Death; thou staydst soe longe,
And I soe weake, and thou soe stronge
I looked full oft, did still attend
When thou wouldst thy Dimittis send,
Thou canst not come soe soone as I,
Am reddy & prpared to dye,

I was wth age, decrepid growne
Consumed away, to skynn and bone
My payne was greate, my patience more,
And troubled wth ye Goute full soare,
Sometymes I was soe hard putt toote,
I neither could stirr hand, nor foote,

I was soe vsed to suffering
I tooke no joy, in any thing,
Only my Garden, and my Booke,
Was all the pleasure, that I tooke,
I nere came there or parted thence,
But thought of Adam's Innocence,

For in my Garden, did not grow,
Any forbiden frute, I know,
And Adam might haue liued therin,
And not bin guilty of that synn,
ffor eating wch, he well was chidden
Because he did the thing forbiden.

It was to me, a Paradice
Where I did dayly exerzise,
As well for private, contemplacion,
As for my Health, and recreation,
Each fruite and flower, soe well did thriue,
The sent; would keepe, ye sicke aliue,

When first, I did begin, to make,
This Garden, I did vndertake,
A worke, I know not, when begunn,
What it would Cost, ere it was donn
Butt I repent not, for ye poore,
Doe there finde worke; had none before.

(348) Wine for Sir Thomas to receive the Communion before his death, which took place at Keven y werne. He was buried in Chirk Church 22 Jan. 166 $\frac{6}{7}$ aged 80 years. The chalice belonging to the private chapel was doubtless the one used on this occasion and is still preserved at the Castle. On it are engraved the Myddelton coat-of-arms—Argent, on a bend vert, three wolves' heads erased, of the field: impaling Napier—Argent, a saltire engrailed between four roses gules.

Chalice and Paten used in the Private Chapel at the Castle.

Butt I repent not, for ye poore,
Doe there finde worke; had none before.

(348) Wine for Sir Thomas to receive the Communion before his death, which took place at Keven y werne. He was buried in Chirk Church 22 Jan. 166 ? aged 80 years. The chalice belonging to the private chapel was doubtless the one used on this occasion and is still preserved at the Castle. On it are engraved the Myddelton coat-of-arms—Argent, on a bend vert, three wolves' heads erased, of the field: impaling Napier—Argent, a saltire engrailed between four roses gules.

Chalice and Paten used in the Private Chapel at the Castle.

I found some worke for every trade,
Some walles did make, some Arbours made,
Some mowed ye Allys; some I putt,
To preuine ye vines; and Hedges cutt,
And some poore weomen, that had neede,
I kept, & payd them, for to weede,

And once a weeke, on Saturday,
I cause my man, theire wages pay,
Wch was sufficient, none neede seeke,
ffor bread abroade, the following weeke,
Or Begg, as they were forced to doe,
When Hunger pinched them, thervnto,

But now I see wth Salomon
All we enioy and doate vpon,
Is vanity and very vayne,
Not worth our labour, or our payne,
When wee are dead, & in our graues,
Alls lost we left, but what wee gaue,

Nor Honor, Riches, nor long life,
Happy in children; and a wife,
ffreinds, and what ells, To vs most deare,
Wee all must leaue, behind vs Heere,
Our only deedes, of charity
To Heaven, will beare vs company,

Off all ye Patriarkes, none of them,
Liued longer, than Methusalem,
Nor was there any greate Comander
Conquered as much as Alexander,
Nor Cresus wealth, nor Samson's strength,
Could them prserue, from death at length,

Sith neither Age, nor strength, nor wealth,
Cannot reuiue, ye dead to health,
I humbly begg on bended k[n]ee
My Saviour, interceed for me,
That for his prtious death & merritt,
Hee at my death, receaue my spirritt.

Haec spes posita in fine meo.

A FFRENDLY FFAREWELL VPON YE DEATH OF SR. THO. MYDDELTON.

IN VERITATE VIXI.

Goe to thy graue thou valiant knight,
That didst for King and Country fight,
And rest in peace. Thou liuedst to see
Him re-Inthroned Thy country free
And ventrest all thou hadst at stake
To bring him from his Exile backe,

What ffather liuing, Thee besides Did for his Children soe provide vnto thine Heire thou didst alowe
As much as many Lords haue now
And Twas thy aime and cheefe desyer
To make each younger sonn Esqr.

(372) Of Fish Street Hill, London, See note 148.

To euery Daughter thou didst sett,
Maried a Lord or Barronett
And equall portions didst propose
To giue to euery one of those ffoure or ffiue Thousand pounds I know
Thou didst on every one bestow.

Not the least grandchild but a share
Thou for subsistance didst prepare
Portions for Girles and Lands for others
That were but Orphants, younger brothers
That none of thy Relacions should Hereafter want didst what thou could.

Besides thy Rents wch many a yeare
Had bin vnpaide and In areere,
Thou part to giue thy Tennants ease
Didst quitt discharge and full Release,
And many Debts In Bonds Tis saide
Thou didst Comand should neere be paide,

Thou many needy, and distresst,
That were wth poverty, oppresst,
That blusht to begg, yet very poore,
Reddy to goe from doare to doare,
Thou setts a worke, and didst maintayne,
All that were willing to take payne,

Not many liues of thy condition
Deserues the name of a physicion
soe much as thou, Thou patients store,
Hadst dayly flocking, to thy Doare,
And vnto all, thou didst impart,
what thou, by nature, knewst or Art.

Now when wth Age and sickness hee,
Death to approach, did plainly see,
His Lady, and his Children all,
That then were there, he sent to Call,
And tooke his leaue forbad them weepe,
ffor Death to him, was but a sleepe, ffor he assurance had that when,

Hee should awake, and Rise againe,
Hee should In Abraham's boosome Rest,
And lie, and liue, amongst the Blest,
And then, wth good ould Symeon,
Hee tooke his leaue, of every one.

VPON THE FFUNERALL OF Sr THO. M:

In morte Trivmpho.

There neuer was, or euer shall,
Bee seene, soe greate a funerall,
As he deserued, and did of Right,
Belonge, vnto this noble Knight, ffor allmost, all the Knights, that were
And Squires of fflynt, and Denbighshire,
In Salop, or presincts, and pales,
of all the thirteene shires of Wales,
ffrom Offas Ditch vnto the seas
Came fflocking, like a swarme of Bees,
The wayes, were soe prest alonge,
That scarce a Man could pass, the Throng,
And much aboute, a mile or more,
The like, was neuer seene before.

And first, ye County Troope of horse,
Marcht, soft, and fayer, before ye Corps,
with Trumpett sounding such a Tone,
As if it did his loss bemone,
In every souldr's face, was Read,
Symptoms of sorrow for ye Dead.

Next vnto them, the Neighbouring poore,
Amounting, to aboue fowrscore,
As many yeares, as he did liue,
for every yeare, a gowne did giue,
for well he knew, when he was dead,
for want of worke, they must want bread,

Then after came his horse, arayd,
with scutcheons, and his Armes displayed.
Twas, an Arabian Courser, ffarr
ffetchd, & Trayned only for ye warr.
another Ledd, wch was alone,
The horse, he Dayly rodd upon,
for he was troubled, wth the Goute,
And allways Rodd, when he went oute,
Both for theire Master, soe much Mournd
Theire Cullors were to sables turned.

The, standerds, with silke and Gould,
Embossd most Glorious to behould,
His sword, his Gauntlett, Head peece were,
And Coate of Armes all carried there,
Then in a chair w. . . . . horse
Wherein fore state, did lye ye Corse,
And for more honr to the dead,
The Coffine made, was all of Lead,
wth a blacke mourninge veluett Couer,
That closed ye Herse & body ouer,

Then next ye Corse, his Children all,
Atended on the funerall,
And his Grandchildren, and Alyes,
Beemoand his loss wth watery eyes,
And all the Knights, & Gentry there,
That loued Sr Thomas, wittness were,
How much they did his loss condole
ffor in theire fface, was seene theire soule,
All those, and many more as sadd
were all in blacke & mourning cladd.

The Ladyes, of Renowne, and ffame,
In Coaches, with his Daughters, came,
some wept for greefe, and some did teare,
opprest wth passion, all theire Heire,
Some wronge theire hands, some Cryed out right
They liued to see, this dolefull sight
Not any there, but did foresee,
The loss of such a freind, as hee

Beesides the greate provision cleare
Provided for all Comers there soe much was bought & soe much sent Twas thought it neuer would be spent Allthough . . . . . house was greate it could
Th . . . . . tith . . . scarce hardly hould
. . . . . e thinke that Westminster
Or Pompey's ample Theater
Or Guild, or Marchant Taylors' Hall
Togeather joyned could houid them all ffo . . . . . ll ye house wth Gentry store was filld soe ffull twould hould no more

Yett there was such a Multitude of Country people & soe rude
And others of the Ragged Route
Itt was thought fiitt to keepe them out
But they were angry did Repine
Because not suffered there to Dyne
And most that murmered that were there
Came but for loue of Belly cheere
Lett Momus Rayle Lett Zoilus grynn
Bett [er much kept out than] inn.
Quum nemini obtrudi

[SIR THO. MYDDELTON, 1ST BART.]

Job. 17. ve 13 I haue sayd my Graue is my house.
His meditations in his sicknes.

I had of howses, tis well knowne,
Many a lyne I calld myne owne
But att my Death I finde I haue
Noe other left mee, but my Graue,
This howse is myne; and well It may
The best befitt, a Corps of Clay,

It is myne owne, I may be bould
to challendg it, as my free hould,
I come not to this howse by chaunce,
but Birthright, and Inheritance,
my father Adam, by his Synn,
First ope'd the Door, to lett mee In,

He therefore lay me downe, & Rest,
A man's owne howse, to sleepe Ins Best
I am a worme; the Earth my home,
from thence I crawle into my Tombe,
where neither hunger, Thirst, cann keepe,
or cares disturbe mee when I sleepe,

Where are those men, whilst I had Breath
Subscribed themselues; my freinds till Death where are those bonds twixt man & wife
they all Endured, but During life,
Where is my honor Lands, and all
These leaue mee att my funerall

The poorest beggar If hee dye
may challenge as much as I,
His graue, may longe & lardger bee,
then is the graue, was made for mee
death makes noe difference, If hee strike
Hee kills both Knight & clowne a like,

But if our Earthly Howse decay,
wee haue a house, not made of Clay,
but in the heauens; and happyes hee,
whom God Admitteth, there to bee,
This Joy I hop'd, did God Implore
I shall enioy, for euer more

To dye, I am the willinge, Rather for that I have soe good a father, whoe for my orphants, younge & Tender
I leave behind, will them Remember
I haue noe better thing to leaue
but them to God, and him bequeath.

Viuat post funera virtus.
